PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The President in his forthcoming message, it is understood, will discuss at length the railroad system, and their great influence on the prosperity and progress of our people. He favors most liberal largesses to railroads, under proper generates and restrictions, recommending among others, it is said, aid toward building an international road from some of the central or Nestern States through the Southwest to some point on the Pacific coast.

There are reasons for stating that the President will again send in the name of Alexand's Cumnings, of Philadelphis, for Revenue Commissioner. Senator Cameron is exerting all his influence to secure his nomination, and says he can be confirmed.

Secretary McCalloch and his department are highly indignant this morning over the discovery of a theft of portions of his report; and a small part of the President's message is aid to have been stolen from the printing effice of the Treasury. He offers a reward for the detection of the thief.

REPORTS.

Soms heads of departments and chiefs of burgau have received printed copies of their reports. In all cases they will endeavor to prevent publication in advance of their presentation to Congress. Members of the preserving them in advance will be required to give assumese that the will observe this rule.

Among the reports alreafly printed are those of the Secretary of the Navy. Secretary of War, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Cemtroller of Currency, Treasurer's, and Register of the Treasury.

Fully recognizing the fact that negro suffrage is established in Tennessee and not likely to be distarbed by the logic of coming events they hail any measure as one of reiewing holosts to their own political freedem. So it may be safely set down that Tennessee exhibition of congressional amendments tooking to impartial suffrage.

While a few of the more honest and intelligent of Tennessee Radicals are in favor of the same measure, the fact can't be denied that merity the whole herd of office-holders, office-seckers, and the tribe of adventurers who thrive and grow fat on the strength of their loysity, are dead-set against universal suffrage, and will leave nothing undone to make which disfranchisement perpetual. He said a good deal of most important business yet remained to be considered, and he trusted no member would talk of dispersion so long as there were any matters remaining undecided, and that those who felt compelled to leave should make an effort to stay, showing no haste to erad their responsibilities, whereby their defiberations would have due weight with the people.

He then suggested that every gentleman when rising, instead of saying Mr. Fresident, a cuit announce his own mane and place of residence for the motion rought by the contract of the motion of the Board in his former suggestion.—This was that each member of that Board hould have priority of speech, and then be would call on the individual members of each delegation in alphabetical order, so that cach delegation should have an opportunity of speaking, whereby they could arrive at the views of merchants from all parts of the country. His Account of His Stewardship

The Harthood Times says:

"James Flak, &r. of Battleboro, Vermont, the father of the notorious Wall street speculator in Eric stocks, is in a lunatic asylum, and it is predicted that his son, the financial genius of Wall street, will some time or other bring up in a similar place. He and his father began life as a couple of Yankee dry goods peddlors, driving their teams from town to town. Finally young Flak got into the dry goods store of Jordan, Marsh & Co., in Boston, from which he went, with a fortune of $20,000, to Wall street, as a stock speculator, getting control street, as a stock speculator, getting control. He would issue great quantities of new stock for speculation, and make great corners, by this means, and by locking up currency. He has won a fortune of millions for himself, and ruined the market value of the road. He is about forty years old and immensely fat." On assuming command of this department I had to encounter difficulties of no ordinary character. The excitement of a Fresidential election, at all times great, was supplemented in Louisiana by other disturbing elements of a local matter. From a struggle of opposing parties the campagn had been writually convince to enter—into a struggle of opposing parties. The great majority of the colorea population ranged themselves on one side; the majority of the white population ranged themselves on the other side. Both whites and blacks had organized into secret political clubs, semi-military in their character, having the ordinary military officers to each company. The colored clubs habitually dilled; the white clubs did not, because with the majority of tem drift was timesessary. It is but just to say that the great body of the people of New Orleans are law ablding and entirely friendly to the Government of the United States. Horece Greeley delivered last evening the first lecture of a series to be given in the Abyashian Church in Waverly-piece, this winter, under the suspices of the Freedman's Educational Association. The attendance was good, and the audience Hstened attentively.

Mr. Greeley said that it would have been much easier for him to have brought's written address on some literary subject than to speak extemporuneously, but on that occasion he would devote the hour to a practical talk about the condition of the colored people in this yountry. It had pleased God to make men of different races and of different eclors, and he had no doubt but that it was a benefisould devote the four to a practicest last about the condition of the colored people in this youngr. It had pisseed God to make youngr, It had pisseed God to make youngr, It had pisseed God to make a proper of the colored people as beneficed arrangement on the part of Divine Providence. Many of the colored people seemed to feel that it would have been better had they been created white. This was a wrong view, for the black man was a tropical belong and the white man would be till adapted to live on the scorching sands of Africa. He believed that if the white men in America in the property of the colored three become black, or at least very dear and three become black, or at least very dear the colored three become black, or at least very dear the world take time, for nature worked slowly. All men living in latitudes where nature placed them were well itted for the station God had assumed them. He had never known of an instance where the blacks had voluntarily emigrated northward, except when they were eccaping from bondaye. Still, he was not in favor of colonizing schemes to

In any event trouble lies befor ramed. In any event trouble lies before the Government. The wrong of ages is coming home at last; and it is by no means certain that, in despoiling the Irish of their rights of property and religion, the English were not sowing the seeds of their own destruction, just as the people of the North, in denying freedom to the South, are laying the foundations for their own enalavement.

Governor Wells, of Virginia, has par-oned Wm. Armistend, of Portsmouth, convicted the Rustings court in November of a misde-casor, and sentenced to six months' impaction meanor, and sentenced to six months' imprison-men. It appeared by the sworn testimony of one of the jurces that after the jury has been out-two days they stool eight for unconditional ac-quittal, two for conviction, and two for a compro-mise. They finally surved to draw lots by plac-ing beliots in a hat and drawing therefrom. The hat was shaken, the ballots were drawn, and seven of them drawing the word "guilty," a ver-dict was accordingly rendered. Governor Wells decided that, under the circumstances, the pris-omer cannot be said to have had a trial by jury.

The events of the last two or three years have had more or less direct concern for large segments of the American population; and it is fair to assume that the readers of the COURIER-JOURNAL, who have watched the progress of the great conflict over the Irish Church, are pretty well informed as to the bearings of the case, and by no means careless as to ewspapers, which have not yet recovered indulging in idle vagaries about the New York Convention, and worse, in idler spec-ulations as to the "ifa" of Seymour's elec-The resignation of Mr. Disraeli is cer-tainly sudden and unexpected, though we doubt if it be not a wise move on his part. It matters little what the Fourth-of-July Convention or what not we might have achieved by the success of the Democratic ticket. "It might have been" is very good for women and poets, but not at all practicable for party organizations; and we propose, in treating of the Democratic party, to deal with its future and not with its parts. *

Of course, in saying thus much by way count those by gone lessons which adver-sity rather more than prosperity teaches to the wisest. Unfortunately, the ministry abandoned follies, and vacillations rarely paralleled in political history, not only placed themselves at the mercy of their opponents, but entirely altered the opinion of the country with regard to the Irish Church. Previously, it was a subject on which every Liberal felt that, if called on to make up his mind, he could not hesitate to wish for some change, but on which most men had only a vague, indecisive, and very dormant opinion. The ministry ter-minated this state of things, and forced, not only the Liberal party, but the country at large, to look on the Irish Establishment s an institution which is utterly unjustifiable, and which cannot and shall not last. These are reasonable probabilities, and hey are tangible objects of speculation. We can afford to dispense with conjectures Having perpetrated this original blunder, r. So, Mr. Disraeli and his colleagues from deed on and defeated time and gains many considerations, legal and prudential, to be looked to, that bind the hands of Mr-

and at last they have resigned, and we shall have Gladstone and the Liberals in office and Disraeli and the Torics in opposition which, in stormy times, is a better position free from responsibilities and rid of embar rassment. Thus ends the first lesson of the disestablishment of the Irish Church. Henceforward the struggle will be more interesting, for we may now begin to look for

The New York Sun, whose editor, Mr. Dana, is an intimate friend of Mr. Stanton says that Mr. S.'s ill health will forbid his Mr. Stanton good health, but his ill health may be the good health of the country may be the good nestra of the country.

As Secretary under Lincola and Johnson he exhibited much energy in some directions, but was on the whole a tyrannical and bad officer. He was, with the exception of Halleck, the most odious officer in the Government, and perhaps even mo odious than Halleck. The odiousness those two officers was often urged upon Mr. Lincoln by his friends, and he never failed to recognize it; but that functionary, ami-able in some things and terribly otherwise in others, lacked the moral or political or physical courage, or all these sorts of courages, to do what he knew should be done. ages, to do what he knew should be used.

Gen. The Port grape is now cultivated in this corry for a wine unexcelled by any other, in its me low juiciness, richness of flavor, and brilliancy color. The grape has been brought to a perf tion never attained in Portugal, by Mr. A. Sje in his vineyard, New Jersey. Physicians say it superior to imported Port for invalids, and summer it is more agreeable and refreshing the claret. FORT LAFAYETTE BURNED. Particulars of the Great Fire in New York Harbor. [From the New York Herald, Dec. 2d.] [From the New York Hersid, Dec. 2d.]
Yesterday witnessed a conflagration of a most unusual and disastrous character, involving no less an event than the destruction of a United States fort just within the entrance of our habor, the fortification in question being none other than the celebrated and renowned Fort Lafayette, around which cluster so many incidents of historic note, progrant with the memories of the numerous disloyal men of prominence of our nation who were confined within its strong walls during the late rebellion. and used at others necessary, that the basiness may be done as it is done by the monarchical governments of Europe, has been referred to a special committee of seven. We doubt very much if Congress will have more work presented after it has been in session a month than the National Board of Trade has on its hands after a two days' sitting. There are, however, some questions brought before it which we regard as within its proper sphere of discussion and action. Among them we note particularly that bearing upon cash sales of produce. The resolutions upon which action was taken were offered by the Chicago Board of Trade, and appeared in our yesterday's issue. They elicited considerable discussion, and, as the matter is one of considerable interest, we give below the remarks of the delegates as reported in the Cincinnati Gasette of the 4th: Mr. Hoffman, of Philadelphis, was opposed to THE ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.

confined within its strong walls during the late rebellion.

THE ORIGIN OF THE FIRE.

The confiagration found origin in the following manner. It appears that about ten miautes before 1 o'clock yesterday aftermoon, fire was discovered from the side of an old and unused chinney on the land side of the fort, where one of the laborers of the engineer's department and the orders of the engineer's department and the property of the property of the engineer's department and the property of the property of warming his dinner. The fire had gain ed considerable headway before it was discovered.

The carpenters have been engaged at work in rebuilding the roof (which was broken down during the war) for several months past, and there was a great quantity of timber, such as shingies and loists, in the place, to which the fire was sighted was foul, and the latter, instead of carrying off the flame and smoke, communicated with the woodwork, which latter was dry as tinder. The wind was high at the time and swept through the embrasures and over the ramparts, faming the frame in a most boisterous manner, and warning the frightened little garrison to seek aftely in all the C. W. Church, who is proprietor of the hotel; just outside of the wall of Fort Hamilton, and with whose office is a telegraph wire, immediately sent a dispatch to General Newton, in New York, Chief Engineer of the harbor fortifications, informing him of the disaster, and requesting that a light draught tug besent down to the burning fort to get a flooring and the oakwork of the stricture with a rapidity truly appailing, in view of the fact that within the powder magazine were stored $3,000 pounds, or seventeen-and-shalf tons of gampowder. There were stored within the fort 100,000 lect of new Inniber, which was to reduce the work, while directly against the outer door of the magazine were pited 130 bandies of shingles—a rather severe test for the fre-proof qualities of that apartment. About four o'clock General Newton, Colonel Vangban, and Lleutenant Miller, of the Engineers' be-partment, arrived on the scene of the conflaggesting such means for the suppression of the fire as were possible under the circumstances, though the latter were hopeless, indeed. The General left about half past six o'clock, he being then of the opinion that there was no hope of saving the work and that an exposion was inevitable so directly raged the firery element about the magazine. The police boat, other from this fear of explosion, and was advised from shore to leave the vicinity of the lill-fated fort Lafayette. She thereupon steamed away and left the fort to the mercy of the sames, which defied all efforts to suppress them. It was decidedly old-fashioned and as a means of modern defense was simply useless. In army parlance it was designated as a company post it would require four hundred men to garrison it. The walls are about seven feet in thickness and the whole was aurrounded by a stout sea wall. It mounted in all eighty guns of minor calibre, two tiers in battery and a barbette. A few new Parrots had been recently mounted on the west side. The guns were generally twenty-eight pounders were generally twenty-eight pounders were generally twenty-eight pounders. It is to be United States, it received its present title in honor of that distinguished soldier and patriot. The walls of the magazine were of solid masoury and about seven feet thick. Six months ago it was garrisoned by a company of the First United States artillery regiment, but since the withdrawal of that company has been garrisoned from Fort Hamilton, consisting of three companies of the First artillery, numbers about two hundred men, and is under Commanding Major Maynadier.
